New Research Perch: Wrapping Up Project COPE

Research Perch

Join host Robin Anderson as she welcomes back previous guests, Project COPE investigators Dr. Ann Blair Kennedy (USC Greenville) and Smith Heavner (Prisma Health), for an update on results and insights from their two-year study.

Project COPE is a collaboration between researchers from the University of South Carolina School of Medicine Greenville, Prisma Health, Clemson University, and Indiana University (IUPUI) to collect survey data about healthcare providers' experiences during and after the Covid-19 pandemic. Listen in to hear the fascinating results!

New IJTMB is Ready for Your Free Access

The newest issue of International Journal of Therapeutic Massage & Bodywork (IJTMB) is packed with can't-miss articles to provoke your thinking and help you in your daily practice. This issue features an editorial review of 2020 articles, plus the opportunity to learn more about:

- Myofascial release for those with low back pain and post-COVID respiratory symptoms;
- Aromatherapy for elderly patients with depression and anxiety;
- Shiatsu for those with dementia and their caregivers;
- Massage therapy for humeral shaft fracture in a child;
- MT as a supportive treatment for pregnancy post stillbirth;
- A survey of Australian cancer center patients receiving touch therapies.

IJTMB is open-access, peer-reviewed, and indexed in PubMed. It is the official journal of the Massage Therapy Foundation and our partner, Registered Massage Therapists' Association of British Columbia.
